Doors:

This is the writer's third drama piece a play that splits the life history of a man into several decades. The man is at the center of life where only fate has made him triumph despite that he practices deceit and robbery. A golden opportunity visits him and he succeeds despite the depth of troubles he has fallen into. Open doors are a commonplace but experience teaches that some sinister acts might lurk within. The central theme of the play appears to doubt the antece. About the Author Onyeka Chidebelu is the fifth child and last son of his parents Joseph and Eveleen in a family of five boys and a girl. He was born on 20th of April 1976 in his native town Abagana located in Anambra State Nigeria West Africa. His childhoo
